Pair of armed killers still sought by police

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Romulus police are continuing their massive hunt for a pair of gunmen, who shot and killed a 54-year-old west-central Michigan man, while he was seated inside his car at the McDonald's Restaurant on Middlebelt Road the day before Easter.

The victim, Elwin A. Lillie of Ewart, had apparently stopped briefly at the fast food restaurant while awaiting the arrival of his 80-year-old mother, Marian, at Detroit Metro Airport at approximately 2 p.m. last Saturday.

Detective Lt. Kenneth Kraus reported the victim was shot once in the head. Mr. Lillie died immediately, Kraus said.

The victim's car then apparently rolled into the side of the restaurant building and then struck the attackers' vehicle, disabling it, Kraus said.

"It appears we have no eye witnesses at this time to the killing," Kraus said, "but since the attackers already had a car, we are assuming they were seeking to rob Mr. Lillie of his money."

Kraus said police sketches have been prepared on the pair, but are not ready to be released to the public yet. But verbal descriptions list the pair as two black males between the ages of 25-30.

The taller of the two is listed as about six feet tall with a thin build and wearing a black trench coat. The other man is said to be about 5 feet 8 inches tall with a stocky build, wearing a blue long-sleeved shirt and jeans.

After their car was disabled, Kraus said, the two suspects fled the scene on foot.

One ran to a nearby Amoco service station, when he spotted a woman driver exiting her 1992 red Pontiac Grand Prix with gold colored wheels. The car's license plate number is 644 WFF.

The gunman told the woman "I want your car," Kraus said, and the woman asked if she could at least keep her purse.

The woman told police that the gunman threw her purse out the window and fled. Police also were told that the man drove onto Middlebelt and stopped just before getting onto Interstate-94 and allowed his partner to jump into the vehicle.

The pre-Easter tragedy has shaken the victim's family, who live in Greenville. The victim left that town about five years ago to live in Ewart, where he cares for a religious camp. He and his wife, Judy, have two sons.

Disposal well trial begins

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

The meeting of the Romulus City Council members took on a somber tone Monday night, only hours after the long-awaited zoning trial pitting the city and Environmental Disposal Services (EDS) opened in Wayne County Circuit Court.

Both sides appeared at 9 a.m. Monday in Circuit Court Judge Claudia House Morcom's courtroom, but numerous postponements were recorded since Morcom reported she had not read all the files on various motions before her.

The trial is expected to last several weeks, lawyers said. Numerous members of the anti-environmental well citizens group Romulus Environmentalists Caring About People (RECAP) joined Mayor Beverly McAnally and other city officials at the trial opening.

R.P. Lilly, one of the main spokespersons for RECAP, appeared at the Monday night meeting and stated, "An overwhelming amount of city residents are opposed to the hazardous/non-hazardous liquid injection well being located in Romulus."

Lilly told McAnally, "Don't down. You have our total support to block this

let us down. You have our total support to block this well's operation."

Susan Revel, volunteer coordinator for another citizens group, Voice of Taxpayers for Efficient Spending (VOTES), also appeared at the council meeting and stated that many citizens favored an out-of-court settlement of the well issue.

Earlier, Revel had sent packets of photostats of postcards VOTES has received from residents who claim they are opposed to the on-going legal battle. The packet also contained a letter asking for the City Council members to put the trial issue on the council agenda and publicly respond to the concerns of citizens. Council members refused.

In response to a related issue, City Council members also voted to set up a future workshop on a conflict of interest measure raised by citizen Sonda Stepchuck.

Stepchuck submitted a possible resolution regarding the conflict of interest issue to the council members more than a month ago. Her action was spurred by the recent injection well controversy, she said.

During past council meetings, RECAP members had asked Councilman Noah "Pete" Bergeron to refrain from voting on EDS issues, since his father-in-law, John Ryznar, is in the process of selling his property to the injection well company.

The protestors have continually complained that Bergeron should not vote on EDS issues or sit in on executive sessions discussing the matter, since they believe a conflict of interest exists regarding the issue.

City Attorney Barry Seifman informed the council members

Hot dog Vendor seeks license for outdoor cart

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

A Belleville man's request to operate a hot dog cart business on city property outside Romulus City Hall and the public library was put on hold Monday night.

Lindal Ferguson, who plans to operate as L and L Snack Service, showed photos of the large hot dog cart he plans to purchase, if members of the City Council approve his sales request.

Ferguson said he has not purchased the cart yet, and, after he did, it still would have to be approved by the Wayne County Health Department.

Mayor Beverly McAnally told council members such food and flower carts were visible in Detroit outside the City County Building Monday at the start of the legal battle between the city and Environmental Disposal Services.

Councilman Randy Gear also noted, "When I visit Washington D.C., I see more carts than I do taxi cabs. It helps many who are short of time," Gear continued, "because food of various types is so handy."

But Councilman Ellis Pennington said he felt the council "might be opening Pandora's box in relation to outsiders use of city-owned property."

Councilman Noah (Pete) Bergeron said he had concerns regarding local fast food restaurants who were paying taxes to sell such food items.

Bergeron said he felt the McAnally administration should discuss the matter with Ferguson and try to set up some type of contract with Ferguson concerning cart placement and clean-up issues.

The motion was approved 5-1 with only Councilman Michael Prybyla opposing the effort.

In an unrelated license request, council members approved a liquor license transfer to Sunlight Market Inc. from Shatha Inc. for property at 29185 Eureka.

The new owner, Jony Yousif Habbo, currently resides in Madison Heights with his wife and three children.

He previously worked as a butcher in Pontiac and was a partner in liquor store in California.

A police department check revealed no reason why the applicant could not apply for the license.

The official request revealed that Habbo is purchasing the business and leasing the premises, Police Chief Robert Brown said.

The council approved the liquor license transfer by a 6-0 vote. Councilman Jimmie Raspberry was absent.

Romulus schools facing $250,000 county charge

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

The Romulus school district, already facing a possible $2 million shortfall, received more distressing financial news last Monday when school administrators learned they also need to send nearly a quarter of a million dollars in chargeback rates for special education services to the office of the Wayne County Superintendent of Schools.

"This news couldn't come at a worse time," Joel Carr, assistant Romulus schools superintendent for finance and operations, said, "as the school district is already working on a $2 million budget cut plan."

Carr revealed that a special superintendents' meeting has been called for noon April 13 at the Wayne County Education Center in Wayne, because of the "confusion and concern regarding special education chargebacks."

The meeting was scheduled by Mike Flanagan, Wayne County Regional Educational Service Agency superintendent, and other county education leaders.

Flanagan, in a memo to local school superintendents, stated, "Although this is short notice, please do your best to alter your calendar as we have in order to make this important meeting."

"The next superintendents' regular meeting is four weeks away," he continued, "and the program format does not allow the kind of discussion, listening and brainstorming session

Travel survey planned in area

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Area residents are being alerted to a travel survey that will be occurring in the greater Metro Detroit area in the next few months as a prelude to the disbursing of $10 billion in federal transportation funds in the next 20 years.

John Amberger, executive director of the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, has informed western Wayne County police chiefs of the survey that is slated to begin late this month and continue through late June.

The information distributed to local police departments can be used to answer public questions as callers ask about the validity of the survey, Amberger said.

The survey is being officially called "Travel Count 94" and Amberger said police departments and other agencies are urged to stress the confidentiality of the survey answers.

The four-part transportation effort will include household surveys, Amberger said, which is conducted by telephone and through the mail. The callers will ask each of the 7,200 random households to participate in the survey.

Questions will center on family area travel patterns, numbers of persons in their vehicles on various trips and other items relating to road use.

Other parts of the survey will include interviews with 24,000 motorists passing through the Metro Detroit area, several hundred truck drivers and several thousand public transit riders.

The survey will cost $1 million, but will be used to plan the federal transit fund expenditures for the next 20 years in Wayne, Livingston, Macomb, Monroe, Oakland, St. Clair, Washtenaw Counties.

Households will be called on a random basis so that it does not emphasize any type of household or discriminate against any segment of the population, Amberger said.

Once their business is concluded, the seniors will be transported back home. The charge for the service is $1.

"The program is designed to help people reach their bank, visit the doctor, go to the post office, do some shopping or even call at City Hall," Hoffer explained.

In addition the program will encourage senior citizens to stop off at the Recreational Center to participate in the Wayne County Nutritional Services Hot Lunch program.

Seniors interested in taking part are urged to call 942-6852 in advance of their requested trip.

Monday night that while he thinks the intent of Stepchuck's request, "is excellent, it does lack certain specificity: such as (1) a council person's family is not defined, (2) nor does it state who is going to investigate the family, (3) what happens when a councilman does not abstain from discussing the issue is not outlined; (4) limiting a council person's ability to speak out has serious implications under the freedom of speech doctrine and (5) if a violation occurs whether there is going to be a hearing is not stated."

Stepchuck said she was sorry she was not informed in advance that Seifman was going to release his opinion Monday, so that she could respond in depth.

But Councilman Ellis Pennington said a workshop should be scheduled in the near future to discuss the over all conflict of interest issue.

Council members agreed to the planned workshop without listing a specific date.

Top policeman honored

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Romulus Police Officer John Leacher has been named a "Top Cop" this year based on the hundreds of letters from students he has influenced.

Leacher, who has served as the Romulus Drug Awareness Resistance Education officer for the last two years, said he has worked both the patrol beat and the DARE assignment during his seven years on the force.

But becoming a father of a daughter two years ago and seeing the growing rate of youth violence nationally have deeply sensitized him to the value of DARE officers today, he said.

In addition to the classes he offers in area schools, Leacher also makes sure he has some time for individual talks with students each week.

One of those private talks last year proved extremely valuable to a Romulus girl, who confided to him first that she had been sexually abused by a family member.

After conferring with her and obtaining professional counseling to help her through the trauma, Leacher said the troubled girl's marks rose from Cs and Ds last year to honor roll rates this year.

"I am proud that my open relationship with all students helped this girl come forward, so that this stigma pressure could be taken off her back and that her self esteem could be greatly enhanced at this early age," he said.

But some students' problems are not that easy to relieve, Leacher said. "It troubles me that some student's families have so ingrained anti-police feelings in their children, it makes it hard to develop such relationships with them."

"But we have been trained in DARE classes never to give up on any child today, because to do so could have stark or, in some cases, fatal results later," he continued.

Leacher was recently questioned by members of the electronic media following the shooting death of Romulus High School graduate Christopher Jones.

He said he expressed his frustration that no one apparently had been able to emotionally reach the 15-year-old Taylor boy who is accused of the tragic shooting.

"As DARE officers we never know how many such tragedies we head off by developing communication links with such children at an early age. Many lonely children today feel they have no one to talk to...not even their parents," Leacher said.

"It remains obvious that children living in stressed-out families today need to be able to vent their frustrations before they are released in the form of rage against society," Leacher concluded.

In the letters of support for Leacher from Romulus students, he is praised as "a leader, a good role model, a man who always has time for us (students) and someone we can rely on when everyone else is too busy to listen."

Christians stage 1st Good Friday procession

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

A spirited throng of 230 hymn-singing Christians marched a half mile along Goddard Road in downtown Romulus on Good Friday, as a prelude to a historic religious service outside the Romulus Wesleyan Church.

Pastor Donald "Mike" McClellan smiled as he looked out over the sun drenched gathering and declared, "This is great...this is the first coming together of so many different Christians in Romulus' history."

"It is a glory for all of us to know also that there is no racial division in heaven," McClellan said.

The procession that began shortly before noon Friday included men and women of all ages, tots being carried or pushed in strollers, pre-teens pushing their bikes and even a family from St. Aloysius Catholic Church leading two horses, one pulling a wagon.

The walkers, led by the Rev. Neil Swanger of the Ball Road Tabernacle Church, sang numerous Lenten hymns including Old Rugged Cross, Amazing Grace and Were You There?

Seven local pastors joined in the religious procession carrying an 8-foot cross, onto which participant's names were nailed signifying their participation.

The main speaker of the day was Pastor Arthur Willis of the Pentecostal Missionary Baptist Church, who began by urging all in attendance, "to take the hand of someone you don't know and tell them 'I love you'."

Willis told the gathering "I'm bringing you nothing new today. If you are looking for something new, you are at the wrong spot."

"I'm here to tell you instead some thing old...the story of the three crosses at Calvary," Willis said. "There were three men there that first Good Friday, one was there in sin, one was there to sin and one was there for (our) sin."

Pastor J.D. Landis of the Community United Methodist Church warned the gathering in a closing prayer, "There is a danger here today and that is some of us may leave without being changed by the Holy Spirit."

"You'll soon have a chance to nail your hatreds, your ill feelings and the rest of your sins to that cross. Please do so and feel cleansed when you do," Landis concluded.

Hundreds attend pancake meal

Several hundred area residents turned out recently to support the 37th Annual Romulus Kiwanis Club Pancake Breakfast at the Romulus Progressive Hall.

Kiwanis cooks, president James Napiorkowski and member Frederick M. Hay, prepared the "all you can eat" meal.

The service club was organized in 1956 with 38 charter members, including Frederick W. Hay and Gerald Nault who turned out to assist at the breakfast this year.

Romulus club members were on hand to personally thank those supporting the event this year and Arthur Mapes of the First of America Bank and Roger Kadau, club treasurer, announced that receipts from the festivity exceeded the expectations of club members.

All project money collected by Romulus Kiwanis Club members is spent on community projects and International Kiwanis Club efforts.

Kiwanis projects include: dental care for the needy; Mott Children's Hospital at the University of Michigan; honor stu-

we need to have."

In a second memo, Flanagan admitted, "I have received a number of calls from anxious superintendents who are reacting to rumors. The Special Education Committee did not discuss the chargeback issue at its March 18 meeting, because the plan was not finalized at that time."

Flanagan cautioned the superintendents, "The cutbacks do not impact your 1993-94 budget."

Romulus Superintendent of Schools Dr. William Bedell also received a letter from Kathryn Mathey, director of special education services for the county. She explained, "Special education center program costs for the 1992-93 school year far exceed revenue available through the Act 18 Fund."

Mathey said she learned through the 1992-93 close down that the shortfall county-wide for special education is $15 million. She attributes this shortage to "reduced actual tax revenue, reduced state categorical aid, increased center program costs (particularly salaries and fringe benefits), significant increases in costs of the state schools and the effect of recapture of our out-of-formula center program operating districts."

She urged school administrators, "Use this estimated chargeback amount in preparing your 1994-95 budget. Actual invoices for the 1992-93 chargebacks will not be issued until July 1994."

The chargeback listed for Romulus Schools is $244,529. Mathey said the local school districts will have the next several months "to review and correct any errors in the student enrollment data provided by our center programs."

Carr said, "We have had chargebacks in the past, but not to this massive amount."

Assistant Romulus School Superintendent Dr. Terrel LeCesne said students from birth to 26 years of age are affected by the special education program.

Since Romulus schools do not have a special education center, students are transported to programs in Garden City, Livonia, Northville, Redford-Union, Wayne-Westland and the county day-treatment program.

Carr is not sure where the $244,529 will come from. "Obviously we can't spend the same money twice," he said.

Security officers now in place in high schools

Security in the Wayne-Westland school district has been fully implemented since the recent hiring of a former district employee as a security officer at John Glenn High School, according to district Superintendent of Schools Dr. Larry Thomas.

Executive Director of Secondary Education Charlette Sherman said hall monitors, hand-held and walk-through metal detectors and security officers are now in place in secondary schools.

Metal detectors are only used on an as-needed basis, according to Sherman, with walk-through devices used at high school evening events which draw large crowds and hand-held detectors used when a student is suspected of carrying a weapon.

"The hand-held metal detectors are primarily for use by principals if a problem is suspected," Sherman said.

Each secondary school has at least one security officer while the two high schools have one security officer inside and outside the schools. Afternoon security officers were also hired at the William D. Ford Vocational Education Center and the Adult Education Center.

With the recent hire of Wayne Drug Abuse Resistance Education (DARE) officer John Williams as a full-time security officer at Wayne Memorial High School, school officials requested that Westland police provide an officer for John Glenn High School. However, to date a Westland officer has not been assigned to the school and board members appointed Marti Molitor as the school security officer.

Molitor has police training and experience through her seven years of service with Ann Arbor Police. She will be responsible for monitoring the building and acting as a liaison between the Westland Police Department and the students.

"It's long overdue. Although I am pleased, I am still upset they (Westland police) wouldn't come forward and provide us with a trained officer. I believe it's needed there (John Glenn) and at the vocational center," Board President Francis Winter said.

Westland police are assisting the schools with random walk-throughs in the secondary schools and meeting with administrators to discuss their concerns, Sherman said.

None of the officers carry weapons, Sherman noted.

"They all carry walkie talkies to communicate with the building administrators. They're the eyes and ears of the building," Sherman said.

DARE officers are also spending a half day each week in the junior high schools walking through the halls on a visitation basis.

"These officers are not there for security reasons. They assist students," Sherman said.

New language has also recently been added to the student code of conduct requiring harsher treatment for students who abuse drugs or alcohol. The policy also prohibits students expelled for weapons violations from other districts from attending Wayne-Westland schools.

Reasonable limitations

When an area school board was called upon to decide whether or not to approve additional expenditures for handicapped equipment, the members opted to approve part of the request and decline the remainder.

After the decision was made, an activist in the audience chided the board members for putting a dollar sign on compassion.

"We can never afford to do all that we want to do," said a board member in defense of their actions.

Her statement recalled a statement from former Canadian Prime Minister Kim Campbell, who said, "There is no limit to what we can do, but there is a limit on what we can afford to do."

Although Campbell's term of office was short, her words should be long remembered on both sides of the border.

Yes, there is no limit to what we can do, and to what we would want to do. We all want to end pain, poverty and disease. We all want to upgrade the living conditions of our fellow men and to enhance educational opportunities for all.

We all want to provide more than life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness to all Americans - we want them all to share the good life with us.

Now comes the difficult part. How do we afford all of this?

There is, indeed, a limit on what we can afford to do. Can we afford to stretch our resources - actually, the resources of the American taxpayers - enough to provide everything for everyone? Can we afford to fill all of the worthy requests? Provide the resources to conquer pain, poverty and disease? Dip into our pockets to upgrade the living conditions of all of our fellow men and enhance the educational opportunities for all?

Can we do these things - worthy as they are - all at once and without regard for the costs? We do not believe that we can, regardless of our good intentions. Unfortunately for the impatient, the positive changes and the solving of difficult problems must go forward one step at a time.

We must remember that, although there is no limit to what we want to do, there is a limit on what we can do.

Once was more than enough

Last week, during a meeting of the present members of the Wayne-Westland school board, tempers flared and heated words were exchanged, all of which evidenced the underlying hostility and animosity present on the board these days.

Such divisive philosophies and attitudes do not serve the taxpayers or the children in this district. While we certainly do not advocate any rubber-stamp board and often find that some honest disagreement and variety of opinion is helpful, the present climate is far to reminiscent of times gone by when the board was completely divided and rendered themselves useless to those they were elected to serve. It is our opinion that that history of board ego, ignorance, temper and political shenanigans is the primary cause of the severe problems today.

The present administration appears to be taking advantage of the board division to continue to violate the Open Meetings Act and the Freedom of Information Act, keeping the board members and the public from information to which they are entitled. We are reminded of clever children who take advantage of friction or estrangement between their parents to do as they please, without control or guidance.

Perhaps the air has now been cleared and these public arguments have served as a catalyst for more open and honest communication and less drama and subterfuge.

We hope so. The taxpayers and the students in this district deserve far better than a repetition of the antics of past years.

Belleville police thanked

To the editor:

I want to write about the Belleville police department.

Often we hear of complaints about police, but this article is a letter of praise and gratitude for some of the officers at the Belleville police department.

My family has lived in the Belleville area for a little over 15 years and at least three different times we have had dealings with the police.

One son had an accident which sent an older lady to the hospital in a body brace. My son was so upset about causing another person injury, when we arrived at the scene the Belleville police were trying to reassure my son everything was going to be OK and it was just an accident.

Just last week, my other son was in some fairly serious trouble with the law and an officer.

Vern Taylor was instrumental in helping my son and me through a real ordeal. I am sure the outcome would have turned out much differently if it weren't for him.

When I first talked to Vern Taylor, I made a statement, "I know my son is just another case to you." He informed me that he wasn't just another case, that he was a person in trouble and he cared.

I want to publicly thank Vern Taylor, through his help and thoughtfulness my faith in the system is somewhat restored.

Also I know God answered my prayers and I know my son thinks highly of Vern Taylor. There truly are a lot of decent people in this world.

Group seeks donations

To the editor:

As a Romulus resident, taxpayer and a member of the board of directors of the Romulus Chamber of Commerce, I am writing to you about an issue which I feel very strongly about.

Our organization, VOTES (Voice Of Taxpayers for Efficient Spending) is an organization of Romulus taxpayers formed to address the issue of inefficient spending of our local tax dollars. We are not a political organization.

The City of Romulus, is currently involved in a lawsuit with Environmental Disposal Systems, Inc. (EDS), the manager of the deep injection well project. This lawsuit has already cost the city hundreds of thousands of dollars - money which the city does not have. For fiscal year 1993-1994, according to the city's projected budget, the general fund balance was projected to fall to approximately $100,000, expenditures will be approximately $11.5 million and revenues will be approximately $10.2 million. At the time this budget was submitted, Mayor (Beverly) McNally acknowledged that, "Should alternate revenue enhancements not be in sufficient amounts, services in future years will not continue at current levels".

During the March 7, 1994 city council meeting, McNally stated "The roads all over this town are falling to pieces and it just makes me sick..." It is clear that our city's finances are in serious trouble. Instead of spending our tax dollars to repair our roads, fund the needs of our police and fire departments and promote other community services, such as our recreation department, our city continues to pay large amounts to fancy lawyers in Detroit to continue the fight against EDS.

Recently, we mailed a letter from Councilman Pete Bergeron to the citizens of Romulus which asked for expressions of support on this issue. The response has been tremendous. By a margin of 10 to 1, the citizens have responded with the call for the city council to stop wasting our tax dollars and settle the dispute with EDS outside the court room.

VOTES intends to continue its efforts to persuade our elected officials to change course and to stop the irresponsible spending of our hard-earned tax dollars. We are currently mailing letters to citizens, running ads in newspapers and taking other steps to communicate with local taxpayers and businesses about our city's worsening financial condition. These efforts are for the benefit of all of us, however, they cost money.

Please send us your donation, no matter how small, payable to "VOTES", so we may continue our efforts to achieve spending reform.

State school controls sought

To the Editor:

Bulletin-Lansing, 1996: "800-Pound Political Gorilla Runs Amuck in State Capital-Numerous Casualties!" It could happen.

The 800-pound gorilla is, of course, the incredibly wealthy and politically powerful Michigan Education Association (MEA), which represents the financial interests of thousands of highly paid and benefit-rich Michigan public school teachers.

And the political casualties? Anyone who relies directly or indirectly on money from the state to support themselves. That could include welfare recipients, city and county workers, corrections workers, state police, natural resources people (including, indirectly, hunters, fishermen, retirees and families who use the state parks system), and the list goes on and on.

Michigan's public education monopoly has had an absolutely incredible-and unsustainable-run-up in their financing levels over the past 10 years. Annual increases in total funding have approached 8 percent over the 10-year period-nearly twice the rate of inflation on a per-pupil basis. And, during that time the student population has plummeted with test scores falling alarmingly.

Here's the problem. While Proposal 'A' has transferred the funding mechanism of education to Lansing, the spending mechanism for that money is still vested in the local school boards. Most local school boards have shown almost no willingness or ability to control spending over the long term. Indeed, over the past 10 years the mentality of most school boards has been "tax and spend, tax and spend, tax and spend."

Will the education monopoly now accept the financial realities of Proposal 'A' and scale back their excessive demands? I seriously doubt it!

Because of this, the State Legislature should act immediately to bring education spending and funding under state control. Otherwise, a fiscal disaster is almost a certainty.

Public school teachers should be brought under the state civil service laws immediately. And tenure laws should be abolished to professionalize our teacher corps. Illegal teacher strikes must be effectively stopped-just as we have done with our police and firemen. Over 500-plus school districts should be consolidated to discourage the incredible administrative waste and duplication of effort that now exists. Purchasing of supplies should be centralized in Lansing to achieve quantity purchasing discounts. And privatization of some services should be explored.

The time for real education reform has come. Will the public education monopoly dig in their heels, stone-wall and attempt to rely on brute political muscle to achieve their financial goals, regardless of the consequences to others? Or will they assist in finding creative legislative solutions within existing funding levels? These questions remain unanswered.

You can play an important part in this historic effort to reform education in Michigan. Call or write your state legislators today and demand education reforms to achieve cost control. Your opinion really does count!

Awesome!

13 robotic dinosaurs roar into exhibit

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
News Editor

When talking to staff members and visitors at the Dinoroars exhibit at the Toledo Zoo the word, awesome, is most often used to describe the 13 life-like pre-historic creatures and their setting.

Visitors travel back 165 million years in time to see the predators and their prey in habitats designed and built by the zoo staff and freelance contractors.

Steve Snyder, the curator of exhibits, directed more than 7,000 hours of work into the creation of the pre-historic settings, which add authenticity to the show.

At the preview of the exhibition, Snyder suffered laryngitis and was unable to explain to visitors how the settings were constructed. However, fellow staff members and guides explained that it was an awesome project.

Zoo directors took the opportunity for a bit of well-deserved gloating to point out that Toledo not only is the setting of the Dinoroars exhibit, but the Toledo Museum of Art is the site of the prestigious Reubens exhibit - both major undertakings for a relatively small community.

They also proudly note that the Toledo Zoo is the only one in the nation - at this time - to have Tuataras, small relatives of the dinosaurs which now reside on a few islands in New Zealand. Not bad for a zoo which was founded in 1900 with one woodchuck in a box.

Film fans who saw the popular movie, Jurassic Park, last year will get a closeup look at a Tyrannosaurus rex, Velociraptor and Dilophosaurus plus a view of robotic models of the Apatosaurus, Deinonychus and Protoceratops.

It may be best to bring a preschooler or, at least, an elementary school student with you to explain which dinosaurs are from the Jurassic period and which are from the Cretaceous period. And, also to identify the Utahraptor and correct you if you improperly identify the Quetzalcoatlus.

For adults who are not accompanied by a dinosaur-wise youngster, there is an exhibit guide with accompanying map to lead them through the recreated habitat of the dinosaurs and an active - constantly erupting - volcano.

To alleviate the fears that some young visitors may have, an operating model of a Dinamation International Corp. made robot is located at the beginning of the exhibit. Visitors can see how the movements of the robot are created with compressed air moving through pistons in the cylinders. Large cylinders are connected to the arms and body, while the eyes and mouth are controlled by very small cylinders. Mouth movements are synchronized with roars that are emitted from a speaker hidden in the base.

The exhibit opened in the Museum of Science Building on March 29 and will continue through Sept. 5. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and admission is $5 for adults and $2.50 for children and senior citizens. The Dinoroars admission is $2 for each visitor in addition to the regular price.

Of course, here is a Dino Store for gifts and souvenirs

Trial set in Westland gun battle

A 33-year-old Westland man, charged with felonious assault after allegedly shooting at another Westland man's home while it was occupied, is scheduled for a July 27 bench trial in Detroit Recorder's Court.

Joseph Earl Justin, 33, was released on a $5,000 personal bond pending trial. If convicted, Justin could face up to four years in prison.

Testimony was taken in Westland 18th District Court from 52-year-old Westland resident George Patrick Merlino, Sr. who is also scheduled for pre-trial examination April 14 on the misdemeanor charge of discharging a firearm.

Merlino testified that he was inside the bedroom of his home, located on the 36300 block of Booth, around 8:20 a.m. Feb. 19 when, "A gentleman pulled up in a gray van with blue strips yelling 'I'm gonna shoot... George' and pulled out a 12-gauge shotgun," Merlino testified.

According to testimony, Justin then began shooting toward the home and a vehicle parked in the driveway.

"My wife, Sharon, was in the front doorway ... I pushed her aside," Merlino said.

Merlino denied accusations that he brandished a weapon and fired in return hitting Justin seven times with pellet shot.

Neither Merlino nor his wife were injured during the gunfire which resulted in one slug hitting a large rock which was positioned between Justin and Merlino's wife and another hitting the roof, Merlino testified.

According to police reports, Justin apparently decided to take the law into his own hands in mid-February, by going to the home of a 28-year-old man who was allegedly harassing him.

The incident led to a shootout between Justin and Merlino, the father of the 28-year-old, police said. Both men claim they discharged their weapons to defend themselves from the other person.

According to Justin's statement to police, Merlino's 28-year-old son had been threatening and harassing him for about a month regarding a girlfriend. En route to the station, Justin told police he had his car tires slashed about a month prior and some KKK literature was placed on his vehicle, police reports said.

He later learned the 28-year-old man was responsible for these incidents and for making harassing phone calls to Justin's home.

In response, Justin told police he got his 12-gauge Remington semi-automatic shotgun, loaded it and put the gun in his van before driving to the victim's home to scare him, according to a statement given to Westland police.

Justin claimed he sounded his car horn to get the victim's attention and when the 28-year-old's mother came to the door, he told her to keep her son off his property or he would be shot, the statement said.

He showed the woman his shotgun and within a few seconds, Merlino came to the door with a shotgun and began to open fire on the subject, Justin told police, shooting him twice. According to reports, Justin was hit once in the top of the head, causing his baseball cap to fly off, twice in the hand and four times in the right leg with six shot, otherwise known as BBs, Stobbe said.

Justin's 1985 Chevy van also suffered numerous dents as a result of being hit by the six shot, according to his statement. In self defense, Justin told police, he fired back four times with his shotgun which contained bullets, according to Stobbe.

Justin said he did not aim at the home, but rather at the Chevy Blazer in the driveway, according to police. He then drove away and dropped the shotgun off at a friend's home, the statement said.

In a statement given to Westland police, Merlino admitted that, in defense of his family, he grabbed his 12-gauge shotgun, loaded two to six shot rounds and then fired them in the direction of the man. Merlino told police Justin then fired three more times toward the home and drove away. According to reports, Merlino did not know he hit Justin.

Neither gunman wanted to seek prosecution, so Westland police Sgt. Marc Stobbe acted as the complainant in the case.

Wife pleads guilty in stabbing

A 34-year-old Westland woman, charged with second-degree murder in the stabbing death of her 35-year-old husband last year, entered a guilty plea to involuntary manslaughter before Detroit Recorder's Judge William Lucas.

Leslie Jill Hicks is being held on a $100,000 cash bond pending her April 15 sentencing on the reduced charge which carries a maximum sentence of 15 years in prison.

Hicks confessed to police that she killed her husband,

Teddy Lynn Morris, who suffered a single stab wound to the chest at approximately 3 a.m. on Sept. 18, 1993. The stabbing occurred on the back deck of the Hick's home, located at the 5800 block of Linville Street in Westland, according to Westland police.

Hicks and Morris were involved in a heated argument, police said, when Morris exited the house and Hicks, who was in the kitchen preparing food, followed him out on the deck with a 6-3/4 inch blade in hand and continued to argue with her husband.

According to police reports, the argument started late in the evening when Morris accused Hicks of having an affair.

As they were arguing, the two began to push each other, police said, and Hicks stabbed her husband in the chest. Hicks told police the stabbing was an accident.

Morris was rushed to Annapolis Hospital and pronounced dead at 4 a.m.

Robbery suspects face trial

Two Detroit men, charged in connection with an unarmed robbery at the Westland Best Buy store located at 35300 Cowan Road, were bound over to Detroit Recorder's Court for trial.

Roderick Griffin, 37, was bound over on the unarmed robbery charges after his lawyer, Geroge C. Dovas, attempted to have the charge reduced to separate charges of larceny and assault. Griffin is being held on a $50,000 cash bond and could face up to 15 years in prison.

The person accused of driving the get-away vehicle, Rodney Darrell Wheeler, 28, was charged with being an accessory after the fact, which is punishable by up to five years in prison upon conviction. Wheeler is being held on a $25,000 cash bond.

Best Buy store security guard, Michael Ittel testified that he witnessed the defendant take two video cameras and walk around the cash registers and toward the exit. Ittel, who was standing at the exits confronted the man, saying "excuse me" twice, he said.

The man allegedly continued out the door and Ittel grabbed toward him and was struck in the face, according to testimony.

The security guard continued after the man who began to get into the passenger side of a silver Ford Fiesta. While Ittel was reaching into the car to grab the cameras, the perpetrator allegedly "slammed" the door on his arm.

"I let go and the car moved forward dragging me. I got my hand out and fell forward," Ittel said.

The perpetrator got away with Sony and Sharpe video cameras worth about $1,600, according to testimony.

ALL-AREA BASKETBALL

James Head

An outstanding all-around player, Plymouth-Salem, 6-6 senior James Head earned national attention for his cage skills. He was selected to play in the McDonald's Classic, an honor reserved for the top preps of the nation. A four-year performer for coach Bob Brodie's Rocks, Head averaged 20 points per game, also hauled in 12 rebounds, blocked two shots and registered four assists and four steals in a 19-4 Salem season.

GLENN, INKSTER COACHES BEST IN AREA FOR 1994

John Glenn High School coach Mike Schuette would like to bottle up some of the attitude and enthusiasm his 1993-94 Rockets displayed during their run for a Class A state championship for the future generations of players.

It was the kind of dedication that inspired Glenn to put together a winning streak that gave the Westland players a district and their first regional basketball titles. Glenn reached the state quarter final before Battle Creek Central ended it for them.

"This team had excellent work ethics, and it paid off," said the 47-year-old coach who came back from a 13-9 season a year ago to post a 20-5 record in his sophomore year at Glenn.

"The dedication of these players - from the starters to the 12th man was the key to this team and our successful season," Schuette stressed.

High on Schuette's credo list is a commitment for all-around excellence. He says that a high school coach should never forget, "These are high school athletes and sports is an extension of the classroom. We must never forget in our work with these kids that there must be room for fun."

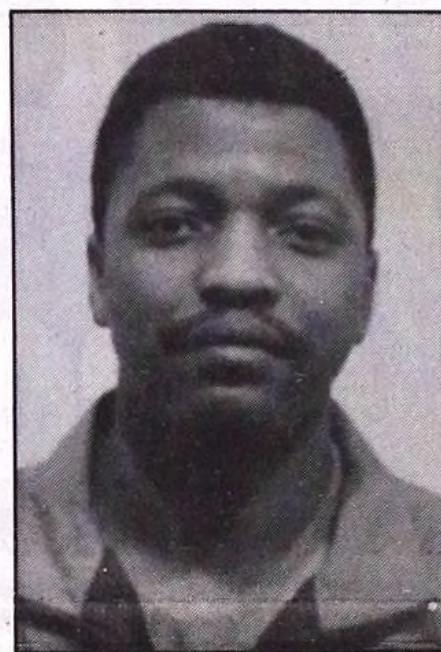

An educator in the Wayne-Westland school district for the past 24 years, Mike Schuette also earned another post-season honor - he's The Associated Newspapers 1993-94 Coach of the Year.

Monte Dennard knows what it's like to be a winner.

The former Robichaud High School cage star who went on to play and coach for the University of Wisconsin-Superior, Dennard took a talented Inkster High School basketball team to the Class B state quarter finals in his

Tyris Williams

Always focused on the job he had to do so that Robichaud High School would win, 6-5 senior Tyris Williams averaged 16 points per game and nine rebounds in a 19-4 season. Three of those losses were to arch-rival, Inkster, a team that reached the state quarter finals. A senior with three years of varsity experience, Williams scored a season high 29 points against Rouge.

Albert White

Considered the dominating force on the Inkster High School team, Albert White led the Vikings to the Class B state quarter finals. En route, the 6-6 junior scored 20.8 per game and also hauled in 15 rebounds in a 23-1 Viking season. The lone Inkster set-back came from eventual state champ, St. Clair Shores Lake Shore. White was also picked unanimously to the All-Suburban Athletic Conference and was named the Most Valuable Player.

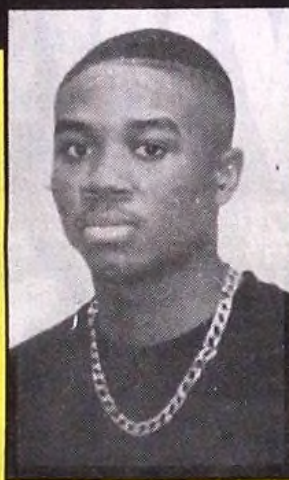

Antoine Stoudmire

This was not one of the better years for Romulus High School, but it wasn't because of Antoine Stoudmire's efforts. The 6-2 junior led the Eagles in scoring with 12 points per game and also collected six rebounds per outings. "He has great leaping ability and his hard-work ethics set the pattern for his teammates," said first-year coach Guy DelGiudice. "He will be the block we will built upon next season."

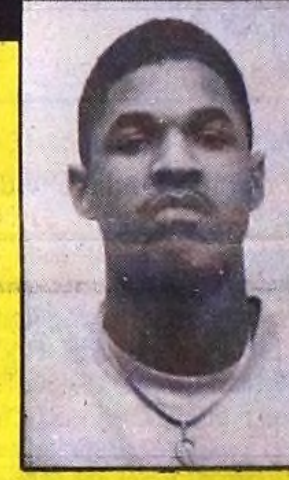

Tony Goins

In a historic Westland John Glenn High School season, 6-5 senior Tony Goins managed to play a key role. Glenn posted its best-ever record (20-5) in winning their inaugural regional title and reaching the state Class A quarter finals. Goins' contribution to the unforgettable year included 21 points per game and 10 rebounds. "Tony was a real clutch performer for us," said coach Mike Schuette.

Guy Rucker

Coaches in the area know that Westland John Glenn High School will be the prime candidate to repeat for conference and state honors a year from now. The reason is 6-11 center Guy Rucker, who has already caught the eyes and imagination of most college and university coaches. During his junior campaign, Rucker finished with 12 points per game and 14 rebounds. He also knocked away six shots, leading the Rockets in rebounds and blocked shots.

Lorenzo Guess

Considered one of the best freshman athletes in the state, Wayne Memorial High School player Lorenzo Guess is a versatile performer who scored at a 14-point-per-game clip. The 6-3, 175-pound basketball-football star is an explosive type of player who led the Zebras to a respectable 16-6 season. "Lorenzo was the key to our success," said coach Chuck Henry. "This is the first time that I can recall that a freshman has drawn so much attention."

An excellent ball handler who has deceptive speed, Mike Foley was the sparkplug that ignited Belleville's cage machine which rolled to a 19-3 overall record. The Tigers, under coach Michael Garland, also captured the inaugural Mega Conference Red Division championship. Foley's contribution to the title year included 18 points per game, three assists and two steals.

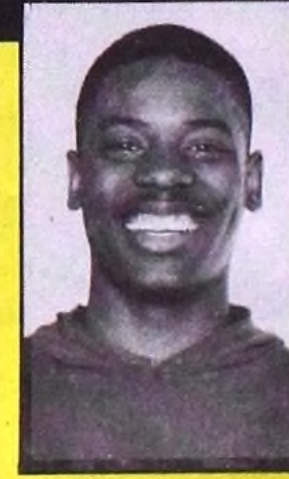

Matt Paupore

Probably one of, if not the best shooting guard to surface in the 1993-94 campaign, Matt Paupore led Plymouth-Canton to the Western Lakes Conference championship. The 6-3, 175-pound senior scored at a 22.3 pace and also collected seven rebounds and carded three assists each trip on to the hardwood. "Matt did everything it took for us to win the conference title and have a successful season," said Canton coach Dave VanWagoner.

Antwan Harris

An excellent playmaker and ball-handler, Robichaud High School player Antwan Harris used his skills to break up opponents' attempts at the full-court press. Harris, who switched from guard to forward any time coach Ron Tarrant chose to change tactics, scored at a 15-point clip. He also contributed 11 rebounds per game. The sturdy 6-4 senior got better as the season progressed.

James Outlaw

Ready to play every game, James Outlaw is also a junior who will be returning to the Inkster High School Viking line up next year. Outlaw is a hard-nose cager who contributed 17 points and 11 rebounds per game. Also an all-Suburban Athletic Conference team member, Outlaw has grown up around the hoop and his court instincts are second to none. "I don't think you can find a more knowledgeable player."

ALL-AREA BASKETBALL TEAM

Ted Docks

One of the quickest players in the Western Lakes Conference, 5-10 junior guard Ted Docks was another major reason while Plymouth-Canton claimed the conference championship this year. Docks finished his junior year with 11 points, seven assists and four rebounds per game. He also was named to the all-division team. "Ted was our best defensive player and also our quickest," said coach Dave VanWagoner.

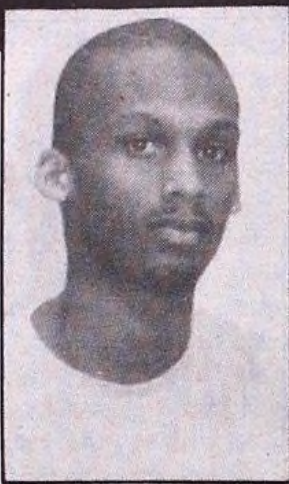

Greg Pruitt

Tenacious on defense, play-making Greg Prewitt was the sparkplug that ignited the Inkster cage machine that rolled to a school-record 23 consecutive victories. The 5-9 senior also chipped in nine points per game and counted six assists. His steal record (3.5) also is very impressive when you consider that he played in one of the toughest basketball leagues (Suburban Athletic Conference) in the state.

Courtney Howard

Usually assigned the top opposition scorer, Courtney Howard relished the role. The 6-0 senior Wayne Memorial High School captain also contributed 10 points per game and came across with 3.5 assists. "Howard definitely was our best defensive player," said coach Chuck Henry, whose Zebras won 16 of their 22 games and finished second to Belleville in the Mega Conference.

One of the highlights in an outstanding John Glenn High School basketball season was the Rockets' victory over natural rival, Wayne Memorial, in the championship round of the Class A district playoffs at Romulus High School. At the end of the game, coach Mike Schuette (at left) receives the district plaque from Romulus athletic director Jesse Meriweather. Schuette and the Rockets went on to win their first regional championship and played Battle Creek Central in the quarterfinals, a game they lost. The loss left the Westlanders only three victories shy of the coveted state crown. With 6-11 center Guy Rucker back next year, Glenn hopes to go all the way in 1995. ANP photo by Carl Brown urban Athletic Conference (SAC) season, district and regional championships.

When you consider that the SAC is packed with some of the best prep cage talent in the state - league affiliates include Robichaud, Highland Park, Willow Run and River Rouge, Dennard's feat in his first year was definitely not an easy one. At least six of those victories in the SAC were by one or two points, and coaches will tell you that if you can win the close ones, it's coaching that is the difference.

What was the difference? Dennard said that he changed from an offense to defense-oriented philosophy because defense wins games.

"Yes, you got to score more points than your opposition to win," said Dennard, "but if you can force the opposition to make the mistakes, the turnovers - if you play defense you're on the right road."

With an excellent first year behind him, Dennard is anxiously looking forward to his sophomore year at Inkster. He will have Albert White, recently named to the All-State team and James Outlaw, one of the finest athletes in the area, to form the nucleus of the 1994-95 club. For his outstanding coaching performance, Monte Dennard has been selected as The Associated Newspapers Coach of the Year.

The funds, collected from an afternoon at the Scoop 'n Shoot facility on Marie Street in Westland, where participants drive bumper-type cars and shoot into goals similar to basketball nets, will benefit the drug-education program in the schools. April birthdays shared with stars

Not only do April showers bring May flowers, but the fourth month of the year also brings religious observances in its early days and a day to salute secretaries during its last week.

Actress Debbie Reynolds celebrates her birthday on April Fools Day, and we wonder if she ever had trick candles on her birthday cake or received empty boxes instead of gifts from trickster friends.

On April 3, singer-actress Doris Day and actor Marlon Brando celebrate birthdays and poet Maya Angelou observes her special day on April 4.

The unlikely pair - actress Bette Davis and black educator Booker T. Washington - have birthdays on April 5. Famous magician Harry Houdini was born on April 6, along with Billy Dee Williams. Former first lady Betty Ford was born on April 8, comedian W.C. Fields was born on April 9 and television host David Letterman was born on April 12.

The coal miner's daughter, Loretta Lynn, was born April 14 and writer Thornton Wilder was born April 17, the same day that Nikita Khrushchev was born.

Actress Jayne Mansfield and actor Dudley Moore share an April 19 birthday and actor Ryan O'Neil celebrates his birthday on April 20.

Although the official celebration of the birthday of Queen Elizabeth II is in June, when the weather is more pleasant in England, her birthday is actually April 21.

Child actress and later ambassador Shirley Temple Black celebrates her birthday on April 23, actress Shirley MacLaine was born on April 24 and actor Al Pacino was born on April 25, which is also celebrated as Secretary Day.

Comedian Carol Burnett was born April 26, Coretta Scott King, widow of the slain civil rights leader, was born April 27, actress Ann-Margret was born April 28 and musician Duke Ellington was born April 29.

Film reflects life in news room

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
News Editor

Although it was close to the truth, The Paper didn't quite reflect the true madness, off-beat humor and chaos of a news room.

After viewing the film, the staff of Associated Newspapers awarded the movie a unanimous "thumbs up," while acknowledging that the general public would not have believed a more true-to-life representation anyway.

We laughed at the senior editor

(Robert Duvall) reading aloud the definition of deadline - something we have all witnessed or done ourselves - and we sympathized with metro editor Harry Hackett (Michael Keaton) when the staff invaded his office to complain, whine and demand - simultaneously - about their needs and wants.

True-to-life, the staff of the New York Sun was self-absorbed, petty, egotistical, mean-spirited and short-tempered - all of the qualities that we have grown accustomed to in our own news room.

The Paper tells the tale of one day in the news room - the metro editor facing a decision to take a new job, the imminent birth of a baby, the conflict about the story of two youths erroneously arrested for murder and the life-threatening illness of an editor.

Best of all, the characters - flawed as they might be - were dedicated to their work and proud of their product. Do you see why we liked it?

Shop owner fits both brides and budgets

BY LAURIE HUMPHREY
ANP Staff Writer

She fits both the brides figure and her budget.

That's the secret of the success of Angi's Bridal and Fashions in Canton Township, according to owner Hazel Lim.

Gowns can start as moderately as $100 and some have exceeded $1,500, Lim said. Her store carries a full selection of wedding party dresses as well as party and prom apparel, she noted.

Serving the Canton community for more than five years in the F & M Center at 42075 Ford Road, Lim said business has been "pretty good."

Busy providing customers with first-rate service, Lim believes, "People come to our store because we offer discount prices and try to please the customer. Good service is important," she said.

Employees at Angi's Bridal and Fashions focus on customer service in everything they offer including details such as the wedding invitations, gloves and jewelry. Aside from the wide selection of dresses and shoes, the shop offers accessories to make it a one-stop shopping experience for each and every customer.

If consumers cannot find what they are looking for in the store, employees can offer assistance through mail order or custom-made materials.

"We do a lot of custom-made dresses," said Lim, "and they can be cheaper than the ready-made dresses."

Alterations and head pieces are done in-house, expediting the waiting process for the clients, but Lim still suggests that purchases be made early.

Hazel Lim, owner of Angi's Bridal and Fashions in Canton Township, provides gowns for brides and formal occasions which cater to every budget. The shop caters to brides with a full line of accessories for the big day and will coordinate every detail, including the wedding invitations. Angi's is located in the F & M Center on Ford Road.

Open from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Thursday and from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. Wednesday and Friday and from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. Saturdays, employees at Angi's Bridal and Fashions strive for one goal - to always meet the customer's needs, Lim said.

Suburban Floors has business covered

Residents in the Wayne-Westland area may soon have a new neighbor, and they are looking forward to the move.

Ed Skelly, sales manager at Suburban Floors, presently located at 24522 Michigan Ave. in Dearborn, explained that the business is family-owned and operated and has been since 1950.

"Our customers are dealing with a family operation which has experience and offers a fair price," Skelly said. "I'm not one who says I'm going to give you anything for free (padding or labor) and then hide it in the carpet price like others."

Owned by Scott Falkiewicz, Suburban Floors also custom designs cabinets, wallpapers and handles some plumbing and electrical needs. The store currently features name brands including Philadelphia Shaw, World, Bishop, Royal and Mercury carpets but is looking to add more selection.

"We're looking to add more," Skelly said, "once we relocate in the Wayne/Westland area. Where we are now, we are not conducive to foot traffic because there's no room for parking or to walk around."

The business is open from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. In addition to carpets, Suburban Floors offers customers hardwood, ceramic and linoleum flooring. For a limited time, VIP card holders will receive an additional 10-percent discount on select carpet styles or can take advantage of a special three-room offer.

"We're offering three rooms or 32 yards of carpeting for $499 with a 10-year warranty on carpet, a lifetime warranty

Ed Skelly, left, sales manager at Suburban Floors, 24522 Michigan Ave. in Dearborn, takes pride in the reputation for quality and honesty the family-owned and operated business enjoys. Planning a move to the area soon, the store offers hardwood, ceramic and linoleum flooring in addition to a wide selection of carpets. Presently, VIP card holders can take advantage of a three-room or 32-yard special on selected samples for only $499.

on padding and a five-year warranty on labor," said Skelly.

For a free in-home estimate, phone 565-0208.

"It's been a good ride--it's been a great time and I'm going out on a positive note. When you've hit your peak in effectiveness and the newness wears off--it's time to go."

Inkster man arraigned on assault

An Inkster man charged with two counts of assault with intent to murder and first-degree criminal sexual conduct was expected to be arraigned April 6 in Detroit Wayne County Recorder's Court.

Freddie D. Triplett, 30, is suspected of allegedly sexually assaulting a 16-year-old Westland girl near the railroad tracks in Wayne May 22, 1993.

Triplett was arraigned in an out county court last month, and a $50,000 cash bond was set.

"The victim was beaten very badly, left to die," said Wayne Police Lt. Mel Drews.

The incident occurred near Swanson Street and Merriman Road at approximately 9 p.m., according to Drews. The teenager was visiting her grandmother that day. Drews said she was distraught about a death in her family and decided to take a walk.

"She decided to take a walk that evening between 8:30 p.m. and 9 p.m.," Drews said. "The individual approached her and forced himself on her."

If Triplett is found guilty of assault with intent to murder and criminal sexual conduct, he could receive up to life in prison.

Trespassing skaters issued violations

A group of local skate boarders were among the first to experience the penalties prescribed by a new township ordinance, implemented by the Canton Township Police Department.

Three youths, aged 13 to 17, received violation notices and had their skateboards confiscated by police April 2 for trespassing on the Canton Landings parking lot.

Local police were summoned to the parking lot by a restaurant patron who peered out his window and witnessed approximately 20 youths with skateboards. The man told police this has been an on-going problem.

The teens, accompanied by their parents, retrieved their skateboards from the police department, but were advised that a repeat incident would involve legal action.

Resident burned in explosion

The owner of the apartment complex on the 35000 block of Michigan Avenue received severe burns to his hands April 6 as a result of a boiler explosion.

The Wayne man attempted to fix the boiler when it exploded at approximately 2:30 p.m., according to Wayne Fire Chief Michael O'Brien.

"It was a natural gas explosion," O'Brien said. "The victim received first-degree burns to his hands. He took himself to the University of Michigan Hospital to receive treatment. We were notified of the incident after it occurred by hospital officials."

None of the residents in the apartment complex were injured. O'Brien said some areas of the building were damaged.

Man accused of kidnapping, raping girlfriend

By LAURIE HUMPHREY
ANP Staff Writer

A 22-year-old Dearborn Heights woman is recovering in an Ann Arbor hospital while her ex-boyfriend is behind bars facing charges in her abduction and injuries.

David Wilke, 25, of Dearborn Heights, was arrested by police Thursday night after allegedly kidnapping the woman from her parent's home late Wednesday night and taking her to the Ramada Inn in Canton Township the following afternoon where he allegedly beat and raped her repeatedly. A hotel employee, who checked the couple in, recognized the man after seeing his picture on the television news. The employee immediately contacted the Dearborn Heights Police Department.

"We responded within minutes of getting the phone call," said Sgt. Mark Evarian, of the Dearborn Heights Police Department. "I contacted the Canton Police Department, then got our people together."

Working together, the Dearborn Heights Department and Western Wayne Special Operations

"After posting bond, the suspect stole a 1994 Aerostar and handgun from his mother's home. He then abducted the woman from her mother's home in Dearborn Heights after 9:30 p.m."

Tammie Colling

Team surrounded the premises with more than 40 officers and arrested Wilke as the couple walked down a hallway, away from the room.

According to police, the couple had a two-year relationship before the woman ended it last January. Wilke is accused of subsequently breaking into the woman's residence, raping her at knife-point and robbing her.

Following a hearing in the 20th District Court in Dearborn Heights April 6, a judge ordered Wilke to stand trial on two counts of criminal sexual conduct in the first degree, armed robbery and breaking and entering in that incident, but released Wilke on a $50,000 cash bond, with the condition that he not contact the victim. He is alleged to have abducted the woman hours later.

"After posting bond, the suspect stole a 1994 Aerostar and handgun from his mother's home," said officer Tammie Colling of the Canton Township Police Department. "He then abducted the woman from her mother's home in Dearborn Heights after 9:30 p.m."

The woman, unable to speak to police at length, was transported to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital. She told police she was raped repeatedly and beaten by her attacker. The extent of the woman's injuries is unknown.

Wilke, armed with a .38 caliber revolver, was taken to Oakwood Hospital after complaining of chest pains. He was treated, then taken into custody, according to police.

"He is in custody now," said Evarian, "and he will stay there."

The man will face additional charges as a result of the incident, said Evarian. Police believe one count of abduction will be among the pending charges, which will be determined the office of the Wayne County prosecutor.

Body work Local competitor captures prize

When Tim Nemeth entered his first bodybuilding competition in late March, he expected to do well. What he didn't expect was to receive a second-place trophy and cheers from the audience calling for him to take top honors.

"It was a little embarrassing when they announced that the first- and second-place winners were very close and then the crowd booed when the other guy was awarded first place," said Nemeth. "I felt good that they were with me, but I know it made the winner feel bad."

Nemeth, who celebrated his 30th birthday on April 2, trained for four years before entering the Mid-Michigan Bodybuilding Championship in Flint.

"Everybody at work was happy for me. When my boss saw the pictures of me in the contest,

Police probe shooting, crash

Westland police are investigating a tri-city car chase which led to the shooting of a 31-year-old Detroit man early Tuesday evening, Westland police Sgt. Marc Stobbe said.

The incident began when the Detroit man was driving his 1989 Eagle Premiere on Carlyle Street in Inkster around 5:50 p.m. The alleged victim's car was hit from behind by a 1980 Chevrolet Monte Carlo in the right rear quarter panel apparently by accident, Stobbe said.

The driver of the Monte Carlo fled the scene traveling west on Carlyle. The Premiere driver chased after the vehicle traveling south on Middlebelt Road, turning west on Van Born and eventually turning north on Henry Ruff in Romulus where the Monte Carlo driver attempted to make a U-turn, according to Stobbe.

"The driver was trying to make a U-turn east onto Van Born and broadsided a third vehicle," Stobbe said.

According to Romulus police reports, a 27-year-old Wayne mother was driving the 1980 two-door Ford vehicle when she was struck by the Monte Carlo. The woman and five children riding in the car were treated and released from Annapolis Hospital in Wayne.

"The Monte Carlo was disabled and the three occupants started running north on Henry Ruff from Van Born," Stobbe said.

According to Stobbe, the Premiere driver got out of his vehicle and began to chase the three men on foot.

"He caught one and was trying to hold onto him when the man screamed for help," Stobbe said.

At this point, the driver of the Monte Carlo turned toward the two and fired four or five rounds, hitting the victim in the knee, Stobbe said. The three perpetrators then continued to flee on foot north on Henry Ruff.

Police have attempted to locate the owner of the Monte Carlo, but, according to Stobbe, the car is not registered and is reportedly stolen.

Woman testifies in beating of mother

A Westland man accused of beating his 47-year-old wife to death with a baseball bat was bound over to Detroit Recorder's Court for trial on first-degree murder charges.

Paul Thomas Cramer, 48, was arraigned on the charge March 30, one day after he turned himself in to Westland police and confessed to bludgeoning his wife to death with a wooden baseball bat as she slept in their family home during the early morning hours on March 29, according to Westland police Sgt. Marc Stobbe.

Paulette Cramer was beaten about the head as she lay in the couple's bed sleeping around 2 a.m. Mrs. Cramer was pronounced dead later that morning at Garden City Hospital of head injuries.

According to Wayne County medical examiner Dr. Sawait Kanluen, whose autopsy report was read into the court record, the 120-pound victim died of at least three blunt force injuries to the head.

Cramer, who was not issued a bond, faces up to life imprisonment if convicted.

The couple's daughter, Pamela Cramer, was inside the family home located on the 32000 block of Sandra Lane when the alleged bludgeoning occurred. According to testimony taken during preliminary examination in Westland 18th District Court, the 25-year-old daughter heard "slamming noises" as she was laying in bed across the hall from the couple's room.

"I heard the garage door close and my dad's truck leave. I said something's not right," Cramer testified.

When Cramer went to her parent's bedroom to investigate, she found her mother lying on the bed with blood on her face, she said.

Metro airport murder suspects arrested

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

The second of two Detroit men wanted for the pre-Easter killing of a Detroit Metro Airport visitor surrendered to Detroit Police early Thursday afternoon less than 24 hours after Romulus police issued a murder warrant for his arrest.

The suspect, Charles Douglas Scott, 33, reportedly walked into the 10th Detroit Police Precinct about 1 p.m. Thursday and informed police that he heard a police warrant had been issued for his arrest.

Detroit Police immediately notified Romulus authorities, who picked up Scott and transported him to Romulus. He later was arraigned before 34th District Court Judge Henry Zaborowski on felonious murder, robbery and a felony firearm complaint. Zaborowski ordered that Scott be held without bail pending a preliminary hearing at 2 p.m. Wednesday.

Last Tuesday night another suspect, Isaac Collier Jr., 26, was arrested in the home of a Detroit friend, Romulus Detective Lt. Kenneth Kraus said, and the car-jacked bright red 1992 Pontiac Grand Prix with gold-colored wheels that was used as a get-away car was recovered.

Collier, who was charged with the same three complaints, was arraigned Thursday morning before Zaborowski. He also was ordered held without bail.

He faces a preliminary court hearing this Wednesday. Romulus detectives state the pair apparently tried to rob Elwin A. Lillie, 54, of Ewart, of his money as he sat in his car in the McDonald's Restaurant on Middlebelt Road at 2 p.m. last Saturday in Romulus.

Police said a shot was fired by one of the suspects, apparently while the pair were still sitting in their car. The bullet struck Mr. Lillie in the head, killing him instantly, police reported.

Mr. Lillie's car began to roll, hit the restaurant building and then the attacker's vehicle, disabling it, police said.

Westland firefighters rescue 2 in area house blaze

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

A Westland fire unit recently treated and transported two fire victims from a Garden City home after seeing "heavy smoke" coming from the location, according to Westland Fire Battalion Chief Mark Neal.

Although the two firefighters were not called to the scene, they were in the location when Garden City firefighters responded to the house fire on the 31700 block of Leona Street around 10:48 a.m. Wednesday and volunteered to assist.

When firefighters arrived, they found a Garden City man bleeding profusely from his arm, and his 2-year-old son, who suffered from smoke inhalation. Apparently, Neal said, the man had escaped the burning home and went back inside to rescue his son.

"The man was severely cut up. He had broken out a window with his arm and went through it to get his son," Neal said.

While Westland firefighters treated and transported the fire victims to Annapolis Hospital in Wayne, Garden City firefighters continued to battle the blaze. A Westland fire engine and an additional rescue unit were also sent to assist with extinguishing the fire.

"There was fire coming out of every window of the house," Neal said.

The cause of the fire has yet to be determined. Neal added that the severity of the blaze was "unusual for a daytime fire."

"The fire was very severe. There could have easily been a loss of life," Neal said.

Neal emphasized how successful the cooperative effort of area firefighters through the Mutual Aid Response Pact has been. The pact provides for training firefighters to work with each other and learning how to adapt their systems to differing fire equipment. This pact was also utilized in the recent 16-unit apartment complex blaze at Venoy Pines, located on the 7400 block of Bonnie Drive in Westland. Thirty-five firefighters from Wayne, Westland and Garden City extinguished the fire in two hours.

"All this stuff has paid off. We've learned how to cooperate and work together very well," Neal said.

Westland firefighters Daniel Bush and Edward Leskun, who responded to the Garden City blaze without being called in, were recommended for commendations.

"They were not even invited. Obviously they observed the need for service and went there," Neal said. "Garden City has a relatively small department. If Westland firefighters hadn't treated and transported the victims, Garden City would have had to let the house burn until they were taken care of."

"I sorta did a double take. I saw something on her face, then I noticed it was blood," she said.

Cramer went back inside her bedroom and called 911. As she was talking to emergency personnel, she noticed the back door was open and immediately shut and locked the door. The daughter followed the directions of the 911 operator and said there was no response from her mother.

"She wasn't breathing and didn't have a pulse," Cramer testified.

The defendant drove directly to the Westland Police Station and confessed to the crime. According to Stobbe, Cramer went to the front desk and held his hands in the air and said, "I surrender - I just killed my wife."

Westland police officer Greg Angelosanto testified that he arrested Cramer after he realized police had just been sent out on a domestic violence run to the defendant's address 10 minutes earlier.

"He was very cooperative after I arrested him. He said, 'There's no problem. You'll find my fingerprints on the bat. You'd have to know what's going on to understand it,'" Angelosanto testified.

Westland police officer Michael Matich testified that he found the bloody bat lying up against the bathroom wall in the rear of the home. Pamela Cramer said her father may have retrieved the bat from the couple's sports bar in the basement.

According to Stobbe, Cramer suspected his wife of having an affair. However, Stobbe added, family and friends told police it was highly unlikely the woman was committing adultery because she was far too busy with her work.

"He is a jealous man. There is no indication that she did that," Stobbe said.

Stobbe added that Cramer was sent home from his job as a tool mechanic at General Motors Hydra-Matic plant in Ypsilanti the previous morning when he broke down crying. "He always complained about work, always. I don't think he really liked it," Pamela Cramer testified.

Cramer said her parents argued often, but the arguments did not become physical. The woman said she began to notice her parents arguments while she was in her early 20s and added that her mother was always devoted to the defendant.

"They argued a lot. I tried to stay away from them and out of their problems," Cramer testified.

A few days prior to the incident, Cramer said, she overheard her parents arguing.

"I heard him say, 'I'm going to get a lawyer.' My mother said something like 'whatever, I'll get one, too.'"

The woman added that her father had been acting oddly the weekend prior to her mother's death and that their arguing was "quieter than normal" at that time.

"He had been acting strange all weekend. They were arguing all weekend and that evening he was mostly gone," she said.

On the night of the beating, Cramer, a college student, testified that she stayed up until approximately 1:30 a.m. workclasses. Around midnight, Cramer went into the dining room where she saw her father sitting in the dark smoking. Cramer testified that she attempted to have a conversation with her father, but that he seemed to be ignoring her. The woman later got her father a bottle of water and went to bed. A few minutes later, her mother was dead.

Defense attorney David Esper asked for the charge to be reduced to second-degree murder.

"The government has not presented evidence which shows premeditation or motive. There were no preceding threats, no previous physical abuse, no escape plan. There's no indication he has planned this. He didn't hide the bat and he didn't wash himself or the bat," Esper said.

However, 18th District Judge C. Charles Bokos said, "Premeditation can be inferred from the character of weapon used and the wounds inflicted."

"Pamela was aware the bat was commonly kept in the basement. The defendant went and retrieved the bat," Bokos said.

Lawmaker announces retirement plans

In a surprise announcement this week, State Representative Justine Barns announced her decision not to seek reelection this November.

Barns, who has served in the state office since 1963, has been serving as an elected official for nearly 31 years.

"I am going out on a positive note," Barns stressed. "I made my decision just prior to my campaign for re-election in 1992. I knew then that that was my last campaign and that this would be my last term. This isn't a decision you make overnight. I grieved then, but now, there is no sadness in my voice and no grief. I've had a good run and the people of Westland have been very good to me," she said.

Barns said that she told her staff members of her decision Wednesday, and that her family has known for some time. Barns, who was widowed in April of 1988 with the death of her husband, John, is the mother of two sons, Scott, 39, and Duane, 48 and the grandmother of two, Christie and Katie.

Barns began her political career, she recalled, as "that noisy broad from NorWayne," who was first elected to the Westland City Charter Commission in 1964. In 1966, she won her first term on the Westland City Council and in 1980 was elected as vice-chairman of the Wayne County Charter Commission. In 1983, she became a state representative and she will leave, she said, in 1995, just as she always recommended others should do.

"When you reach the peak in effectiveness, when the newness wears off, then it's time to go," she said. Barns has long been a proponent of 12-year term limitations for legislators and noted that she is living up to her own advice.

"I've always believed that it takes six or seven years to become effective as a legislator to know who to go to to get things done - who will support you," she said.

Barns, 69, said she will not accept any long-term future political commitments or office but would like to work on the Westland city library and that she would like to work with children again.

"I'm going to clean my house, paint my bedroom and put my feet up for a change," she said with a grin. "The time is here for the younger generation to step in. It's time for new blood."

"I've done some good things and I've been effective," Barns said, "and I'm going out when one should, on a positive note."

Barns recalled that she lost her first bid for state office in 1970 and was told to "go home and take care of your babies." "That was the attitude back then. Women were not taken seriously. I ran again in 1982 - and by then my babies were in college so they couldn't use it against me," she recalled.

"The people of Westland have been good to me - I guess I'd say my greatest pride is in my term as president of the City Council in 1976 and 1977 in Westland and the building of two high-rises in the city during that time. In 1975, we established the Senior Services to the Aging - I have a lot of good memories," she said.

Barns list of accomplishments as a state representative, she noted, include keeping a prison from the old Eloise Hospital grounds despite the efforts of political heavyweights to install such a facility and the implementation of double bunking in jails against some extreme and powerful opposition.

"It was right then and it's right now," she said.

But Barns has the same disappointment and concern about state government today she did when she walked up the capitol steps 11 years ago.

"The bureaucracy. It's incredible. It takes forever to wade through and get them to respond. During my second term someone asked me...a really simple thing...to get them an application for a Civil Service examination. I called seven places before I got an answer. Seven phone calls. That's obscene. I've never forgotten it. It still isn't straightened out."

"All elected officials need to remember they are a servant of the people and if they don't know the answer to a citizen's problem, they better get it as soon as they can. That's what they're elected for," she concluded.

An in-depth interview with Barns will be featured in The Associated Newspapers Wednesday edition.

"I trained seriously for four years, but I've lifted weights for many years before that," said Nemeth who trains at the Powerhouse Gym in Taylor and TNT Gym in Woodhaven.

"Every day after work I train at least two hours," Nemeth said. "You'd be surprised how many girlfriends I've lost in the last few years because of all the time I spend on training."

In addition to his regular training regimen, Nemeth keeps on a special low fat, high protein diet.

The body builder stays away from sugar, and dines on such things as protein drinks, rice, chicken and egg whites.

Nemeth is proud of the fact that he has never taken drugs to enhance his body or build muscles.

"I know the problems that drugs can cause, and I've stayed away from them," he said.

The next major event is a power lifting competition in June. Last year, he earned a second-place trophy in his weight class.

"In July, there is the Mr. Michigan contest, but I don't think that I will enter this year. Competing is difficult. I'm still stressed out from the last show," Nemeth said. "I lost 30 pounds to compete as a middle weight at 176, and since then I've put 15 pounds back on."

Mr. Lillie had stopped at McDonald's Restaurant, while awaiting the arrival of his 80-year-old mother, Marian, aboard a plane at Metro Airport. When Mrs. Lillie arrived at the airport, she called her family to tell them that her son had not arrived to pick her up.

Minutes later police arrived to inform her of Mr. Lillie's tragic death.

Family members said Mr. Lillie had driven his mother's car from Florida to Romulus, where he was to meet her after her flight to Metro Airport.

The victim was born and raised in Greenville and moved near Evert five years ago when he accepted a job as construction foreman of a religious camp.

The victim's nephew, Les Lillie, called his uncle "a man who was totally dedicated to his family and God."

Women in BLUE

FEMALES JOIN RANKS OF POLICE DEPARTMENT

Serving with the men in blue in western Wayne County police departments and the Michigan State Police are a number of women officers who face the same challenges, conflicts, responsibilities and dangers as their male counterparts.

Once confined to desk duties, women officers can be found in leadership roles, as patrol officers, dealing with juveniles and gangs and investigating crimes.

Many of the women officers reported difficulties in attaining their jobs because of sex discrimination or prejudice toward women in positions formally in the all-male domain.

Today, many of the barriers are down, and women who seek law enforcement positions will find that their way has been made easier by the "pioneers" who cleared the path for them.

Sgt. Wanda Elden

Sumpter sergeant earns second top spot

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
News Editor

Not only is Wanda Elden the second in command to Police Chief Clinton Brown, the Sumpter Township sergeant is the highest ranking woman officer in the tri-community area.

Elden, who has served as a police officer for 14 years, was promoted to her present rank in January of 1992.

Unlike many police officers who had life-long dreams of public safety careers, Elden "evolved" into police work.

"It never entered my mind before I started working for the township in the early 1970s," Elden said. "There were no females in the department at that time, and I was utilized to talk to women and children. As time went on, I became more and more involved. I thought that, since I was becoming so involved in police work, I should become an officer."

In 1977, Elden became a reserve officer, and then went to the academy in 1979-80 to train for law enforcement.

She found some opposition to her hiring at first, but Elden does not like to dwell on negatives.

"I'd much rather focus on the positives. It's been a very rewarding career," Elden said. "Now, we have a very supportive township board and supervisor. They back us 100 percent."

Although the department has received boosts in manpower and equipment in recent years, the increased case load continues to keep the department extremely busy.

"We have a growing population in Sumpter Township and a change in life styles. We are seeing crimes today that we did not see a decade ago," Elden said. "Juveniles are responsible for a lot of crime and there is an increase in gang activity."

"There are more criminal sexual conduct cases today than two or three years ago. Because there is more publicity about those type of cases, it is coming into the open more, resulting in more cases being reported," Elden said.

Drugs and the crimes related to drug use and distribution also continue to plague the township, she said.

"I'd much rather focus on the positives. It's been a very rewarding career. Now, we have a very supportive township board and supervisor. They back us 100 percent."

Sgt. Wanda Elden

Elden said the highlight of her career was when she was honored by the Michigan State Police with a citation for professional excellence.

"The number of citations are very limited, and there are many screenings before an officer is honored," Elden said. "My citation was from the work that I did on the Henry Majors murder."

When she is not working, Elden enjoys taking off-beat vacations. She has been on safari in Africa, visited the mountains in Peru, traveled to Portugal and gone on an expedition to Costa Rica.

"I don't enjoy the usual tourist-y things. I like to go somewhere off the beaten path and meet the people of the country," Elden said. "I take a lot of photographs, especially of the mountains - I just love them."

"I've got a lot of gorgeous memories of my travels, and I still correspond with people that I've met on my vacations," Elden said.

A few years ago, Elden's dream was to retire in Colorado, and "live happily ever after." Lately, her desire to keep in contact with her grandchildren has changed her focus, and may block her previous retirement plans.

"I hope God will bless me with good health so that someday I can retire gracefully, enjoy my horses - and let the kids ride - and travel," she said.

Elden is the mother of four and the grandmother of three - soon to be four.

'Pioneer' trooper heads narcotics unit

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
News Editor

Heading multi-department auto theft and narcotics units in western Wayne County is one of the first women to be serve as a trooper with the Michigan State Police.

Lt. Sandra Miller heads the Western Wayne Auto Theft and Western Wayne Narcotics units, which work cooperatively with several area police departments who "loan" officers to work on area-wide solutions to crimes that cross their jurisdictions.

"After graduating from the University of Nebraska, I came to Michigan which is the home state of my parents, and applied for civil service positions," Miller said. "At that time, I hadn't considered a career in law enforcement, but I had studied the areas of probation and parole."

Miller was hired for a Social Security position. Shortly after that a trooper told her father that it was rumored that women would be hired by the State Police, and suggested that she submit an application.

"There were no role models for women in the Michigan State Police then. Two women had been hired in 1967 as police women, not troopers, and were assigned to juvenile and intelligence duties," Miller said. "Three other women and I were hired in 1974, and we were assigned to field duty for six months, working as patrol officers."

After their six-month experience as regular troopers, three of the women decided that was the career they wanted to pursue. Miller noted that, at the same time, federal mandates to allow equal job opportunities to women were implemented, and the doors opened for the three women.

"I love my job. No two days are ever the same," Miller said. "I talk to a lot of young women, and I encourage them to pursue a career with the State Police. It is not a job for everyone, but it has many rewards for those who have the qualifications."

Although her presence was a surprise to many people during her first years on the job, very few individuals register surprise when they meet Lt. Miller and learn that the officer in command is a woman.

"During the past years, I've been blessed with the privilege of working with members of other departments, and making some long-lasting friendships," Miller said. "I've had respect from my fellow officers. I think that may be because they feel that if I've achieved my rank, I must be worthy of respect."

Canton officer focuses on crime prevention

By LAURIE HUMPHREY
ANP Staff Writer

She's not Wonder Woman - and the super powers of the Bionic Woman are strictly the stuff of a television writer's creative mind...but the two may have had an impact on the public's reaction to Canton Township police officer Tammy Colling.

Colling was a patrol officer for eight years before assuming her present responsibilities as the crime prevention and community relations officer in December 1991. The three-year position allows Colling to "deal with people in a positive way versus talking with them after a crime has occurred."

Colling began her career as in law enforcement in 1984 with the Wayne State Department of Public Safety. After earning her masters degree in educational sociology in 1987, she joined the Canton Township Department of Public Safety in April 1989.

Today, the officer spends her time talking with students, seniors, neighborhood watch and homeowners organizations, hiring personnel, sharing information with the media and participating in the community gang task force. In her spare time, she is a department training instructor for the evidence technician team and a member of the fire investigative team.

Inkster boasts of 4 women in blue

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Inkster boasts not one - but four - women police officers, who "who are professional and dedicated to law enforcement," according to Inkster Police Chief Terry Colwell.

"These police officers have a wide range of experience that includes juvenile, drug and patrol work," Colwell continued. "They are an asset to our department and our city."

The four police officers are

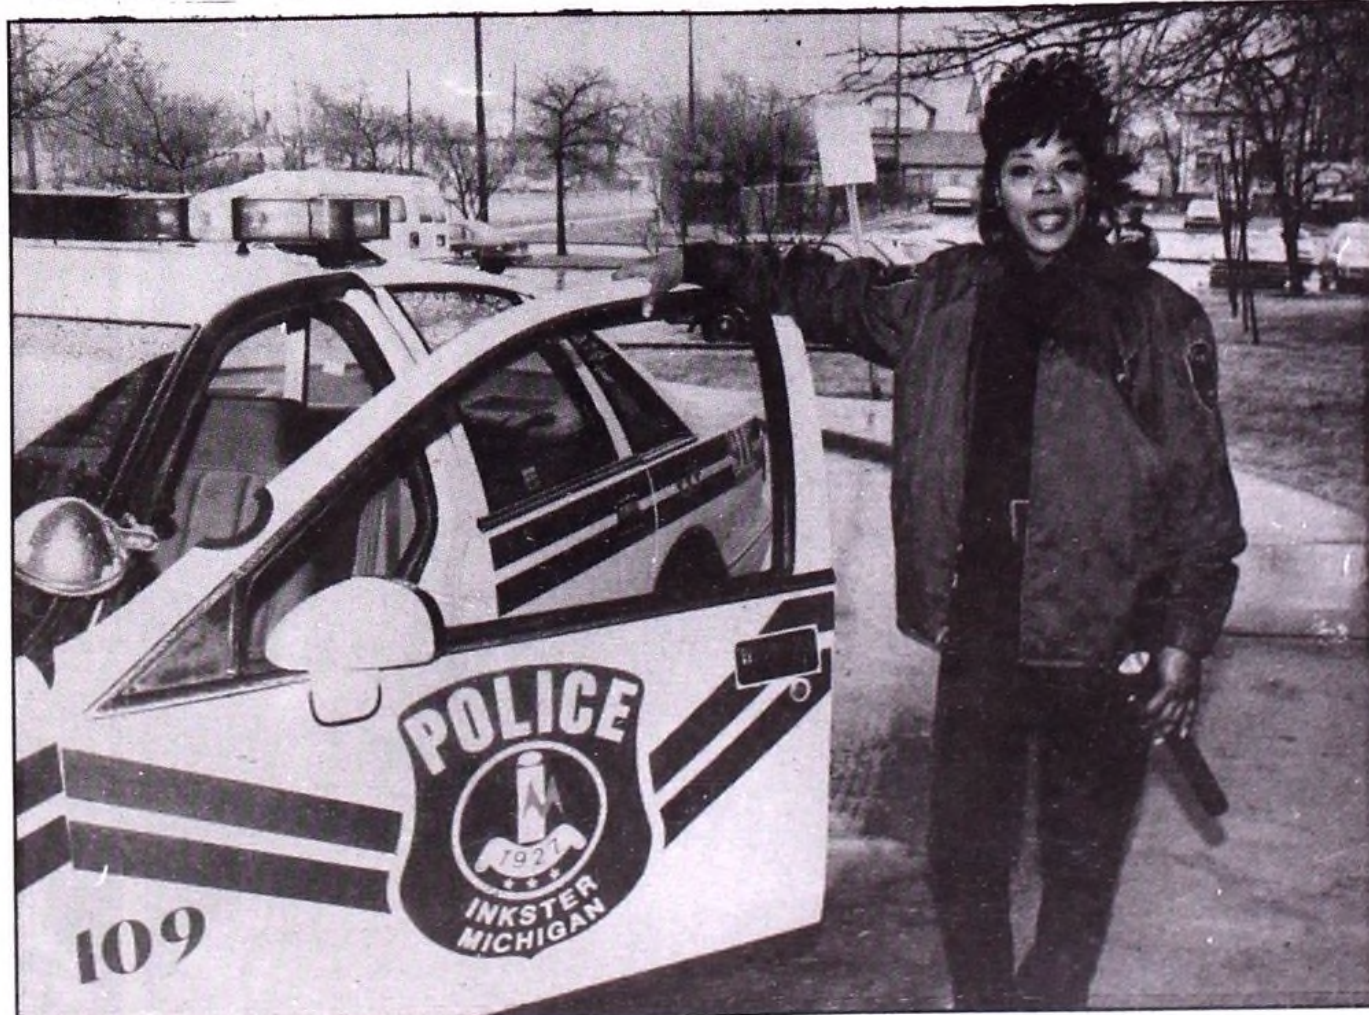

Sgt. Susan Bosshard, who joined the department in 1967; patrol officers Rhonda Frazier, who began her police career in 1987; Warrine Jackson, a member of the department since 1986; and Ann DeGhetto, who joined the Inkster police force in 1984.

DeGhetto exemplifies the women in the department's ranks. Like her partners, DeGhetto wanted to get into law enforcement "because of the interesting and challenging work it provided."

"I wanted to help people and I wanted to make sure that citizens could enjoy their lives without fear," DeGhetto said.

One of the first instructors in the area of the now popular Drug Abuse Resistance Education (DARE), DeGhetto was born and raised in Inkster. She attended Cherry Hill High School and graduated in 1977. She was awarded a degree psychology after completion of her studies at the University of

Officer heads youth department

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Officer Rosemary Cooper was on the police force for more than three years when the opportunity to become the Romulus Youth Officer was presented.

Cooper, a graduate of Wayne State University, welcomed the opportunity while only a few of her counterparts, male or female, expressed any interest in the position.

Feeling her major in law enforcement and minor in psychology would help her immensely in handling the responsibilities involved with the job, Cooper sought the position and was named the first Romulus youth officer three years ago.

Cooper is one of only four women officers in the Romulus Police Department today and is proud of the work she has done with juveniles to date.

Two of the remaining three women are patrol officers (Teresa Smagner and Carolyn Huggins) and the remaining woman (Cora Semrau) is a detective.

Cooper remembers joining the force about six and a half years ago and felt accepted by the majority of male officers.

"Only three men seemed to have had a problem with my joining the department at that time," Cooper said, "and even that problem didn't last very long." Today relations between her and other department members "are wonderful," she said.

As the city youth officer, Cooper expects to see many changes in the juvenile justice system in the future, some initiated by youth violence and gang activities across southern Michigan and throughout the U.S.

Cooper feels youth officers will have to become more community oriented in the future.

Currently she has been called to speak to the fifth and sixth grades at a local elementary school and the administration at the Romulus Middle School as a prelude to city efforts to combat graffiti and any potential gang development within Romulus.

Police Chief Robert Brown earlier asked the local police officers to notify Cooper of any gang style graffiti appearing in Romulus.

"Most of the graffiti popping up here includes slang terms and symbols relating to various gangs," Cooper said, "and we are hoping that if it appears on private property the owners will remove it promptly when notified and when it appears on city property, city employees will get rid of it."

To keep up to date with gang and graffiti problems in neighboring towns and cities, Cooper said she attends a monthly downriver anti-gang meeting. "Gangs don't necessarily stay within city lines," she explained, "so police departments and other support groups will have to work together to stay ahead of the issue."

While most of the youth of Romulus are "great kids," Cooper said, her job is to work with those children who are having problems with society, either at school, home or their neighborhoods.

Longtime sergeant enjoys career

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

Planning to retire by the end of this year, Westland police Sgt. Laura Moore has spent the last 25 years as a police detective handling child and sexual abuse cases.

One of four female investigative officers and seven Westland female officers, Moore was the first policewoman hired in the city. A Westland resident her entire life, Moore attended Livonia Public Schools. She is married and has three children and one grandchild.

When Moore became a Westland officer in the early 1970s, women were not assigned to police patrol, but rather to detective work.

"I'd been on the force five or six years before women were on the road," Moore said.

In fact, the detective was assigned to handle all youth, sex crimes and child abuse cases when she began her career at the police department.

"I formed the youth bureau," Moore said.

Although Moore was interested in investigative work, her decision to become a policewoman came from her desire to help people, she said. Moore has received numerous awards for her police work, including the recent Service to Children Award from the Child Abuse Prevention Council of Out-Wayne County and Westland Police Officer of the Year.

"I've been very flattered by those awards," Moore said.

She added that the "high point" in her career is, "When you can succeed at making a difference in someone's life ... letting them know they didn't do anything wrong. I feel like I truly help people," Moore said.

A detective's workday is by no means ordinary, according to Moore. Detectives are assigned cases which they must investigate, seek warrants, make arrests and then take to trial. Reports are taken, witnesses and suspects interviewed and sometimes polygraph (lie detector) tests are administered.

"It's not routine. Every day it's something else."

Michigan-Dearborn.

Like Frazier, Bosshard and Jackson, DeGhetto says she tries to balance her personal life with her professional life. And sometimes it isn't easy, she admits.

"You can't leave your work at the office - that's for sure. There's no way you can turn it off once you're at home. You try to, but the mind doesn't work that way."

And how do the men on the police force treat their female counterparts?

"As equals," says DeGhetto.

"We have gotten a lot of negative press from the media, and I think that is unfair."

"When someone out there calls for help, they don't care who comes - a man or woman - as long as that person can do the job. And the men and women on the Inkster police force have a proven track record."

OSCAR-WINNING PRODUCER BELIEVES IN HERSELF...AND BEING NICE

She's living the American dream...fame, fortune and success. Oscar winner Sue Marx is also having a lot of fun every day with creating the stuff that dreams are made of...movies and feature films.

In the eyes of some, this go-getter has reached the peak of good fortune, but her thirst for triumph with a major motion picture production has yet to be quenched. Marx is an inspiration to many women who have tried or are trying to walk the same career path. Her motto for success is simple: "You can do anything. You just have to believe in yourself, and be nice."

The Academy Award-winning filmmaker is the president of Sue Marx Films Inc., Urban Communications Group and Woodbridge Video Productions which produces corporate videos.

She is a dynamic woman who enjoys placing others in the limelight because she is most comfortable in the director's chair.

Although her accomplishments have been many, she said her start up the film ladder has had its setbacks now and then.

"When I first started I wasn't getting jobs," Marx said. "I created my own. I wrote grants to do films. I liked doing the interviews. I don't like sitting where I'm sitting now. I enjoy asking the questions, and I found I was pretty good at it. So in the early 1970s I did a series on artists, focusing on what makes them do what they do."

That series resulted in critical acclaim and media attention. She said little by little, she began getting jobs.

"Some of the earlier projects I did included promoting the City of Detroit," Marx said. "I like shooting all kinds of people."

How has the film business changed from when Marx first opened the doors to her business?

"Well, there aren't many people in Detroit shooting film today, and there certainly aren't very many projects being completed in film," Marx said. "We have our own editing suite here. Unfortunately in the past couple years, students were doing student films, and they would come in and rent the table. We haven't cut a film on that table in awhile."

Cost is a major player in the field of filming, according to Marx, and when there is a lack of money, new film ideas can't be pitched.

"You can also do the same kind of editing as you would with film now on video," Marx said. "Film editing is basically non-linear, cut and paste. You couldn't do that with video at first. It was all in order. Now you can cut and paste video which has made editing film style easier."

Since 1979, Marx has produced and directed more than 50 promotional, political and educational films and videos. Most of her work has aired on PBS, BBC, CBC, Bravo, The Movie Channel, Arts and Entertainment and The Learning Channel.

Her film masterpieces have also captured audiences internationally in Australia, Brazil, Canada, Holland, New Zealand, Singapore and Russia.

It was in 1988 when Marx received an Oscar for her short documentary film Young At Heart which was the first independently produced documentary to air on Russian television.

She said making that documentary has given her the greatest satisfaction so far. "I guess I'm a little partial to Young At Heart because it's the one that won the Academy Award, and I never get tired of watching it," Marx said. "Some films I say 'Do I have to see it again.' But, I have to say most of my films I don't get tired of watching over again. I just find mistakes now and then."

"I'm never satisfied even after the film project is completed."

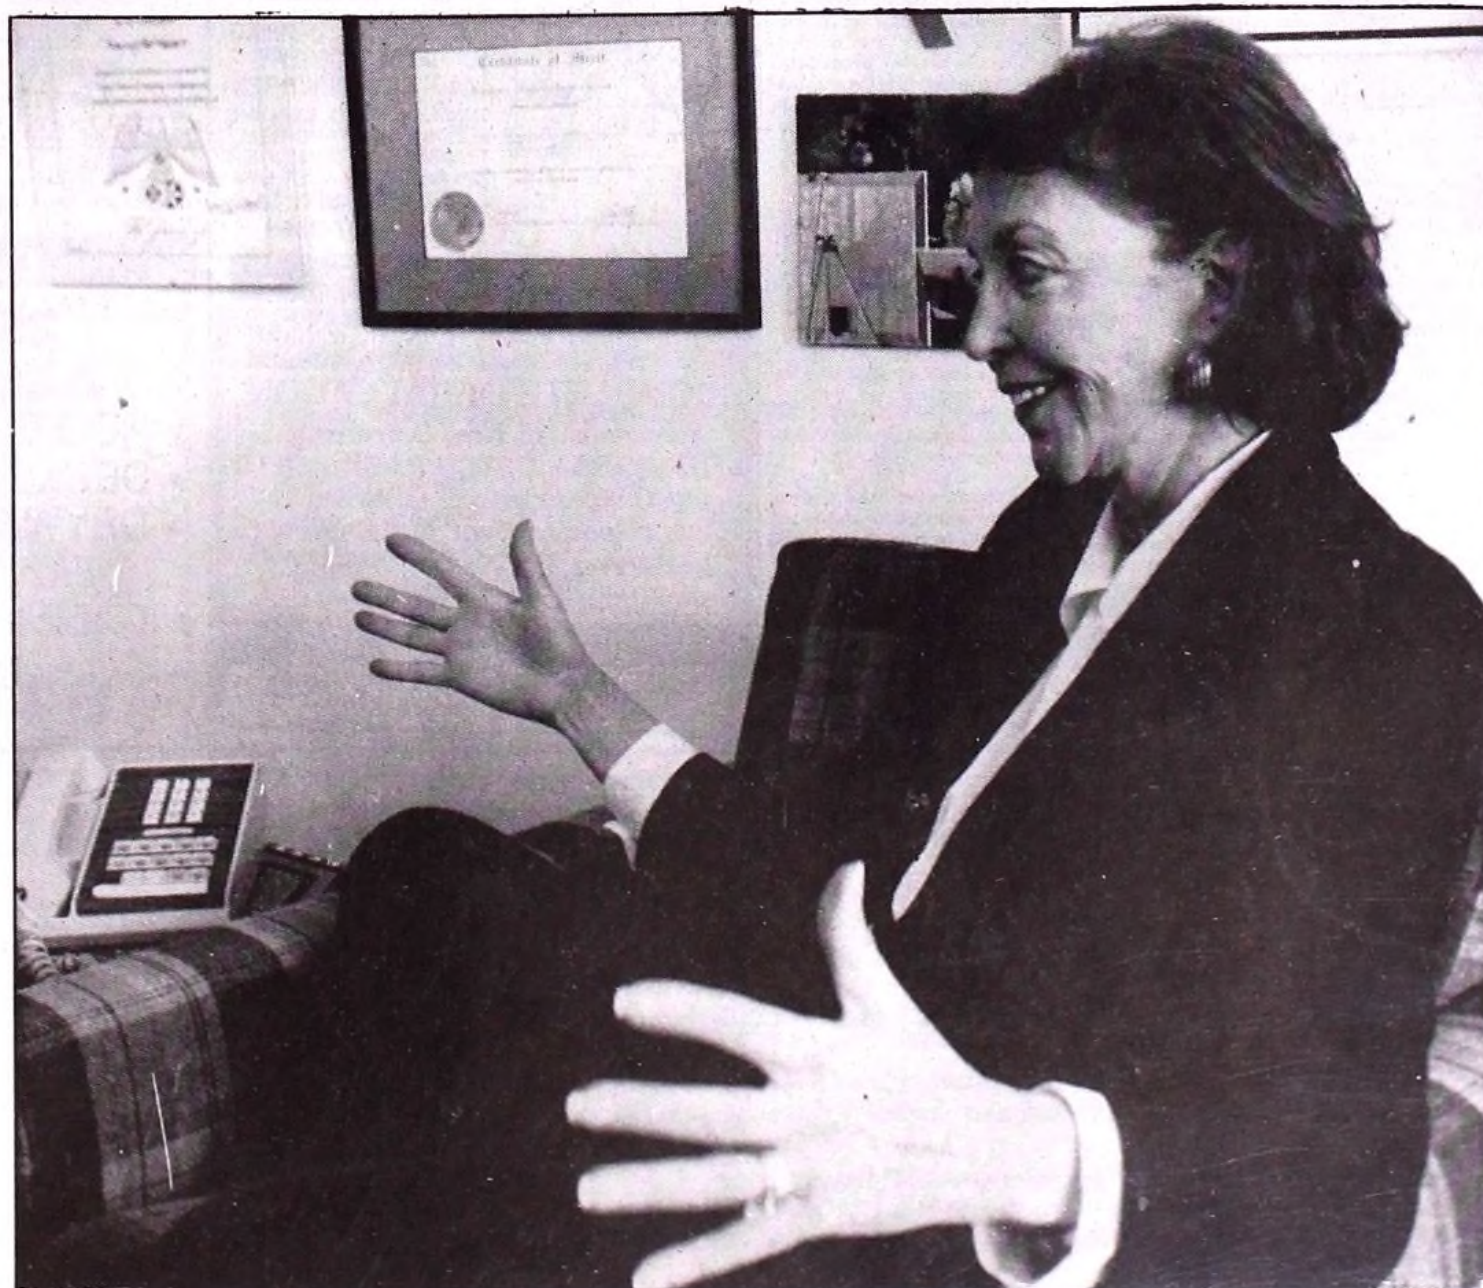

Marx is presently working on a major film piece involving the Detroit Zoo. She will be exposing the human element between animals and man which will be shown in a theater now in construction at the zoo.

"This is going to be a difficult project because it is going to require an enormous amount of footage," Marx said. "We're going to show how man has interpreted animals and how man relates to animals. We're also going to focus on the new hummingbird/butterfly atrium they are building which is expected to be up and running next year."

"I don't like sitting where I'm sitting now. I enjoy asking the questions, and I found I was pretty good at it. So in the early 1970s I did a series on artists, focusing on what makes them do what they do."

Shop owner fits both brides and budgets

BY LAURIE HUMPHREY
ANP Staff Writer

She fits both the brides figure and her budget.

That's the secret of the success of Angi's Bridal and Fashions in Canton Township, according to owner Hazel Lim.

Gowns can start as moderately as $100 and some have exceeded $1,500, Lim said. Her store carries a full selection of wedding party dresses as well as party and prom apparel, she noted.

Serving the Canton community for more than five years in the F & M Center at 42075 Ford Road, Lim said business has been "pretty good."

Busy providing customers with first-rate service, Lim believes, "People come to our store because we offer discount prices and try to please the customer. Good service is important," she said.

Employees at Angi's Bridal and Fashions focus on customer service in everything they offer including details such as the wedding invitations, gloves and jewelry. Aside from the wide selection of dresses and shoes, the shop offers accessories to make it a one-stop shopping experience for each and every customer.

If consumers cannot find what they are looking for in the store, employees can offer assistance through mail order or custom-made materials.

"We do a lot of custom-made dresses," said Lim, "and they can be cheaper than the ready-made dresses."

Alterations and head pieces are done in-house, expediting the waiting process for the clients, but Lim still suggests that purchases be made early.

Hazel Lim, owner of Angi's Bridal and Fashions in Canton Township, provides gowns for brides and formal occasions which cater to every budget. The shop caters to brides with a full line of accessories for the big day and will coordinate every detail, including the wedding invitations. Angi's is located in the F & M Center on Ford Road.

Open from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Thursday and from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. Wednesday and Friday and from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. Saturdays, employees at Angi's Bridal and Fashions strive for one goal - to always meet the customer's needs, Lim said.

Suburban Floors has business covered

Residents in the Wayne-Westland area may soon have a new neighbor, and they are looking forward to the move.

Ed Skelly, sales manager at Suburban Floors, presently located at 24522 Michigan Ave. in Dearborn, explained that the business is family-owned and operated and has been since 1950.

"Our customers are dealing with a family operation which has experience and offers a fair price," Skelly said. "I'm not one who says I'm going to give you anything for free (padding or labor) and then hide it in the carpet price like others."

Owned by Scott Falkiewicz, Suburban Floors also custom designs cabinets, wallpapers and handles some plumbing and electrical needs. The store currently features name brands including Philadelphia Shaw, World, Bishop, Royal and Mercury carpets but is looking to add more selection.

"We're looking to add more," Skelly said, "once we relocate in the Wayne/Westland area. Where we are now, we are not conducive to foot traffic because there's no room for parking or to walk around."

The business is open from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. In addition to carpets, Suburban Floors offers customers hardwood, ceramic and linoleum flooring. For a limited time, VIP card holders will receive an additional 10-percent discount on select carpet styles or can take advantage of a special three-room offer.

"We're offering three rooms or 32 yards of carpeting for $499 with a 10-year warranty on carpet, a lifetime warranty
